Offering your employees preventive immunizations help boost their morale and help keep them from contracting influenza. The flu shot decreases transmission of the flu virus to family and co-workers. Keeping your employees safe from the flu virus will reduce employee loss of time due to illness. ### On-Site Primary Health Care

Continuum Health Partners, Inc – which comprises Beth Israel Medical Center, St. Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital Center, Long Island College Hospital Center and New York Eye and Ear Infirmary- is working together with New York employers just like you to assist in cutting health care costs.

Some of the nation's larger employers (Toyota, Sprint Nextel, Pepsi Bottling Company) are opening up more primary care medical centers in their offices and factories as a way to offer convenient service and free or low-cost health care. More than 100 of the nation's 1,000 largest employers now offer on-site primary care or preventive health services to their employees.

For employees, on-site clinics can mean faster medical attention and lower out-of-pocket costs. For employers, on-site clinics mean gains in worker productivity and lower health insurance outlays.

Business Health Services Network, a clinical division of Continuum Health Partners Inc. currently operates multiple on-site primary care clinics around New York City. For smaller employers, Business Health assigns nurses/mid-level providers to go on-site and provide medical services such as immunizations, i.e., (flu shots), or testing for chronic diseases such as diabetes and asthma.

Having on-sites clinics is a way of not just lowering health care costs but also of keeping employees healthy with the use of preventive health services.
